Coastal Walk on Bridlington Bay

Much of our island's history is simply being washed away. Coastal archaeological sites are being destroyed by winds, waves and winter storms.

CITIZAN is a national response to this national threat. Our community archaeology project is training a network of committed volunteers to survey and monitor these fragile remains on a national series of key sites before they're destroyed.

Pillbox at Bridlington Bay

The CITIZAN north team will be at Bridlington on the 13th July 2015
11am – 1pm

Join us for a coastal walk, commencing from Bridlington Park and Ride along the foreshore to Aburn Sands, exploring the military archaeology of the dynamic east coast. See the devastating effect erosion is having on our national heritage whilst enjoying the Yorkshire coastline.

Toilets, cafes and parking is all located at Bridlington Park and Ride with additional toilets at the halfway stage. The walk is suitable for fit and agile individuals and is a round trip of approximately 4km.
